WEBSITE BIO

Steve Baggott brings extensive expertise in business development, open innovation, collaborative innovation, and angel investing to the ACA Angel University faculty. He was a founding leader of P&G's business development and open innovation capability and served as Director of Global Business Development for 18 years, advancing Connect+Develop and leading hundreds of partner agreements. Today, he consults on collaborative innovation, supports Sus Clinicals, and invests through Queen City Angels. His breadth of experience across corporate innovation, partnerships, and investing provides Angel University students with valuable perspective and practical insight into building and evaluating opportunities.
